I am a UCF junior majoring in computer science interested in finding an internship for this summer. I am looking to learn more about cloud computing, artificial intelligence, cybersecurity, and general software development. However, I am open to any field within computer science. As demonstrated by my consistent engagement with NASA's space camp for 8 years, I have always loved the field of space exploration. I am motivated to pursue an internship specifically on the Space Coast.

As you can see from my attached resume, I have experience in several programming languages from high school and college. I have enjoyed working on computer science projects, both in hackathons and in my own free time. I look forward to learning more about internship opportunities.
